stage two of this project further demonstrates MCCN's commitment to professionalism of our people and operations, as well as our commitment to monitoring and tightly controlling our capital and operational expenditures, as well as G&A, in order to produce a high quality product at a low cost. The climate and highly skilled, low cost labor available to MCCN in Colombia provides many cultivation advantages. We have effectively leveraged these advantages and continue our efforts to further reduce costs".

Mr. de la Vega further added "We are pleased that Dona Blanca has entered into the second phase as by increasing our area of cultivation, both MCCN and Dona Blanca will benefit from fixed costs that will be reduced on a per hectare or per plant basis as well as synergies and economies of scale."

"We are pleased that Dona Blanca elected to deepen their commitment to the project by entering into stage 2, as the additional benefit that MCCN and its shareholders will receive is the non-dilutive financing of a 30% working interest that requires no capital investment from MCCN, but is awarded to MCCN to operate the project. We are very pleased that Dona Blanca is continuing to fund the project during this COVID-19 period. Medcolcanna continues to operate and execute during this period however MCCN's priority continues to be the health and safety of its employees, partners, and the communities in which it operates" commented Chris Reid, CFO of MCCN.

"MCCN is pleased that Dona Blanca has entered into this second phase. Our partners at Dona Blanca are not only investing 100% of the projected costs for the two hectares under greenhouse, but they are also bringing an experienced and knowledgeable management team into partnership with MCCN through this JV. MCCN believes that this relationship will bring additional strategic benefit to both parties within the growing cannabis industry" commented Medcolcanna Chief Corporate Development Officer, Daniel Herrera.

"Dona Blanca's commitment to entering stage 2 of the project, is another great milestone for our company. We are committed to the JV with MCCN. The partnership is a prudent investment for Dona Blanca. MCCN has all licenses and permits in place, so once the quick construction period of greenhouses is completed, MCCN will begin cultivation, which gives us a fast path to cash flow generation. Dona Blanca is confident that this will represent a great return on investment for our shareholders" added Rob Dzisiak, Managing Director of Dona Blanca.
